PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, TUESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 7, 1909.

Every buyer in Pensacola's trading territory is looking to The Journal's advertising columns for guidance in his Christmas buying.

Pensacola will be represented at the waterways convention in Washington this week. This is as it should be. Pensacola's interests in this connection are larger, proportionately, than those of almost any other city.

Start that Christmas shopping bright and early Monday morning and have it over with before the best things are picked out in the hurry-scurry of late-December trading. There never was better weather for holiday buying; there never was a finer selection to be obtained in Pensacola stores. The merchants and their clerks mean to give you a square deal all the time; but they will not deny, if you ask them, that you are absolutely certain of it if you do your trading the first fortnight of December. The early buyer favors himself and favors them. That much goes without argument.

Key West has the bolito players on the run and this is well. The amount of money the shapers who conduct this game have taken out of profitable circulation is considerable and it's high time the city government got after them with a sharp stick. The new administration in Key West seems determined to administer a salutary cleaning to the city down there on the Florida keys, as well as to buy better sidewalks and streets out of that very substantial bond issue which was voted the other day. Better streets and walks and less bolito will work together for good in the physical and moral improvement of Key West. The county authorities are working with these of this in this energetic cleaning process and already many of the gamblers have been worried out of the city without a raid.

If our friends of the cotton zone are long-headed they will do two things in 1910 that they ought to do. They will remember the 15-cent cotton of 1909 and plant a greater acreage of the white staple than they planted this year. And they will attend to the raising of stock as well as to the growing of the cereal crops. We never shall have cheaper beef, judging from the present outlook, until the farmers of the South and East, like those of the West and Southwest, aim to raise at home all the stuff that they are to consume at home. The age of universal vegetarianism is not yet and the day of South American beef, though coming, is not decided. Intelligent farmers all over the land are aiming, so far as possible, to feed their families off the home acres and this, primarily, is what farms are for.

Whatever the capitalists of New York and the politicians of Washington and the scientists of Boston and London and Copenhagen may do for or against him, certain it is that the people of Oklahoma intend that Dr. Cook shall get his recognition as the finder of that long-elusive pole. Almost as soon as he got back on United States soil they proposed to carve "Cook county" out of portions of Caddo and Canadian counties, both of which were willing to be so carved in honor of Cook. Gov. Haskell, of Prairie Oil and Hearshe's lawsuit fame, declining to proclaim a special election in Caddo and Canadian to give Cook county official birth, the people living in the section that wants to be set off as "Cook" have asked the courts to issue a writ compelling the governor to order the election. We advise Dr. Cook to settle in that part of Uncle Sam's young but lusty commonwealth when he comes back, physically and mentally recuperated, from his present problematical exclusion. Cook county will give its plucky namesake any plumb, either political or business, that he may want.

Santa Rosa Will Have Model Farm.

Santa Rosa and her helpful-spirited county sheet, the Santa Rosa Star, have ample cause for congratulation and we cannot blame the little paper for crowing a trifle over the part it has played in the latest beneficial effort for the farmers of that section. Santa Rosa's agricultural school and model farm are coming nearer.

Not more than 10 days ago it was that Mr. Thomas F. West, who had been over to Pensacola to see what the Tri-County fair could do, announced, through the Star, that Santa Rosa required the school and the farm, and that, moreover, the sum of $2,000, contributed by 20 public-spirited men in sums of $100 each, would be enough to pay the bills. His practicable idea proved contagious and the money that will be needed commenced to come in.

The Star this week states, as noted in the news columns of today's Journal, that Mr. Peter Rosasco, the president of the Bay Point Mill company, authorizes the announcement that his office will give $100 at any time, while a letter printed from Mr. S. J. Harvey, cashier of the First National bank, says that "the proposition proposed by your paper, appeals to the First National bank, which hereby subscribes $100 to the fund."

Both Mr. Rosasco and Mr. Harvey used plain language and enough of it to tell the Star that the farmers of Santa Rosa are among the most thrifty, intelligent, industrious and deserving country people in Florida or, indeed, in any state; and that the agricultural school and model farm to teach as well as to practically demonstrate modern agricultural methods is something which their county should have had before now.

The Santa Rosa farm school and model farm for demonstrations is going to be put through, though Santa Rosa is essentially a country county and has no conspicuously wealthy men. It is going to beat out Escambia, the county which has just seen one of the most successful fairs of years come out of its initial exhibit with all the hills paid and a nice little nestegg of $1000 filed away in the 1910 stockpiling. The Escambia demonstration farm would help mightily toward the large West Florida fair which Pensacola expects another year to hold. We do not like this idea of Escambia getting ready to play second fiddle to Santa Rosa.

Cut Out the Booze On Trains.

The Orlando Reporter-Star is on the right track when it says the law which forbids the consumption of liquid nourishment of an intoxicating nature on railroad trains is violated morning, noon and night and that something ought to be done by the officials of the companies operating through this state to put a stop to it. There is some danger, necessarily, in railroad riding, even when everybody on the train is sober, but when there are men on board well saturated with fire water, or even just about half stewed, the danger of travel, ordinarily slight, is several times multiplied.

West Virginia, we might say, has gotten this cut-out-the-booze-on-trains business down very fine. The Baltimore & Ohio, the road which spends a good bit of money in the progress of a twelvemonth to eliminate train drinkers and to keep loafers off of railroad property, puts detectives of its service on all the hyper-patronized trains that ply between Harper's Ferry, the first stop in the state, and the Ohio river, and the fellow caught slipping a bottle is taken off at the next station, rounded up before a justice of the peace, and given a fine and costs to teach him better. And if he's been caught with the same sort of goods before, he does not get out with a fine. The Baltimore & Ohio has been pretty stiff in the treatment handed out to station loafers as well as to men caught imbibing on trains, but just the same it has minimized these two nuisances and has done it in short order so far as West Virginia is concerned. Wherever the consumption of spirits on trains is to be stopped, it's up to the railroad to do it, not to the local authorities.

Is a Safety Razor A Dangerous Weapon?

Is a safety razor a deadly weapon? Some men, who aver that they can cut and chop themselves just as well with a safety as with the good old-fashioned plain steel blade, will tell you, none too good-naturedly, that they can convert their faces into hash quite as speedily and thoroughly with a "safety" as with the other kind—but listen. In Asheville, N. C., the town of 35-cent haircuts and 20-cent scrapes, one negro swore out a warrant against another for carrying a concealed razor on his person.

The razor, produced in court, turned out to be a safety razor, warranted to cut whiskers—if handled by one who knew how to cut 'em with a safety—and not a thing beside. The magistrate, perplexed, thumbed all through his lawbooks, but not a word, not even a syllable, about safety razors could he find. His Honor find. The law defined a razor as "a deadly weapon" but it didn't look as though a safety razor, which wouldn't sharpen a lead pencil or trim finger nails or cut cheese, could be classified with the "deadlies" that sometimes saw a man's head half off, as the complainant in this case made solemn oath the defendant had threatened to do with his razor. So the court continued the case, to search Blackstone further and to determine, if possible, the exact legal status of the safety razor. The only desirable result that we can see flowing from this safety razor litigation is a somewhat novel means of amusement for the West Carolina mountain city, where things are dreadfully dull and "dopey" until the throng of New York and other Northern spenders commences to come in after the holidays.

Despite the incipient boom for the African hunter in 1912, Mr. Taft still plays golf with John Hays Hammond and we have heard no mention made of his successful effort to shake off any of the 369 pounds that he brought home with him from that Western and Southern talking and eating tour.

The Journal extends the hand of good fellowship to its new evening contemporary, "The Review," which made its first appearance as a daily paper yesterday afternoon. The Review is a 6-column, 8-page paper, printed from 6-point type, and it makes a very attractive appearance. There are now three daily papers in Pensacola—one morning and two evening—and The Journal trusts that Pensacola may build and boom fast enough and large enough so that all of them may grow and prosper.

A great many Florida as well as Georgia, Virginia and North and South Carolina men who know him well and admire him much were filled with regret when they learned that John Skelton Williams, the man who virtually made the Seaboard Air Line road and who knows more about what the road has done and could be made to do, was not chosen president at the meeting of the directors. They considered him the logical candidate for the principal office of the road whose possibilities he so greatly amplified and extended when the courts dissolved the receivership and handed the Seaboard over to its owners. They agreed with the Times-Union, the Columbia (S. C.) State and other papers with the name, at least, of being authoritatively posted on Southern railroad affairs that the Seaboard presidency belonged to Mr. Williams and what was more to the point, that Mr. Williams would get it. But the directors did not elect him. They put into his office N. S. Moldrum, who has been the first vice-president during the receivership. We presume that an experienced and competent railroadier has been promoted to this important post, but just the same we believe Mr. Williams was the man that ought to have been elected. Possibly, though, the Morgan-Ryan clique that found Mr. Williams a bit independent five years ago was afraid they might find him too independent in 1909 and then on. Stranger situations are possible.

FARMERS UNION HELD SESSION

INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES DELIVERED AT THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING SATURDAY.

Special to the Journal. Cottage Hill, Fla., Dec. 6.—The Farmers' Protective Union met Saturday and held an interesting session. The body was called to order by Mr. S. N. Thompson.

Mr. Anderson gave an interesting and instructive talk on "Gardening." Close attention was given Mr. Anderson, and many questions were put forward for him to answer. Mr. Whillans gave an address on "Dairying," which was ably presented. He strongly recommended the silo for profitable dairying. Mrs. Neil Blackman delivered her subject, "Household Duties," with a master hand. Her address was highly enjoyed.

H. E. Corfman's talk on "Sugar Cane" was practical and interesting. At the next meeting the following program will be rendered: "Strawberry Culture," by Mr. Macy. "Fertilizer," by Mr. Ingling. "Fruit Canning," by Mrs. Thompson.

The union has twenty-one members and the regular meetings will be held on the first Saturday of each month, at 2 o'clock p. m. The next meeting will be on New Year's day, Jan. 1, 1910.

SANTA ROSA TO GET HER MODEL FARM VERY SOON

SANTA ROSA TO GET HER

The movement inaugurated by Hon. Thomas F. West for an agricultural school and demonstration farm in this county is meeting with considerable encouragement from prominent and influential men in different sections of the county, says the Santa Rosa Star. These men are far-seeing and patriotic—of such men are the waste places made to blossom and industries founded—at their touch thriving and happy communities spring up and civilization is advanced.

The movement is yet only in its infancy, and in due time, we have no doubt, will arrive at full fruition. The time has arrived, these men of affairs realize, when it is the part of wisdom to get ready for the change of conditions which the ever-moving wheels of time, slow though they may appear, remorselessly thrust upon us the fact that the old things, the old manner of business, and old customs, to some extent, dear though they may be to the heart, must be relegated to the limbo of the past, a reminiscence only to be told to our children and children's children, like a thrice told tale, of the good old times long, long ago.

Our great forests, now thickly dotted with the towering pine, through whose high branches the soft south wind stirs a soothing lullaby, laden with the aroma of the health-giving balsam, will be forced to give way to the swift whirl of the hand-saw as it fells the insatiable appetite for our valuable product, in which we feel a pardonable pride. The trend of events unerringly tend to this end, and the time may come when "peevy" and "slimy" may be unknown terms in the industries of Santa Rosa county.

The following letters to the Star tell the story in a concrete and practical shape, and that Santa Rosa will be the pioneer county of the state to inaugurate the scheme of educational schools and demonstration farms appears to be an assured fact.

Pinewood, Fla., Nov. 25, 1909. Editor Santa Rosa Star.

Dear Sir—I read with interest your article, "A Wise Proposition," in your issue of today, and I fully approve Mr. West's idea and your expressions in your above article. I cheerfully authorize you to put my name down for the company I represent for $100 as one of the twenty suggested, for the purpose of establishing an Agricultural School and Demonstration Farm in Santa Rosa county. I am, dear sir, yours truly,

PETER ROSACO.
Pres't, Bay Point Mill Co.
Mr. S. J. Harvey, cashier of the First National bank of Milton, contributes $100 on behalf of that institution, and in his letter, printed below, gives other valuable points, to those already advanced, why the project would be of incalculable benefit to the best interest of all the people of the county. Mr. Harvey writes:

Milton, Fla., Nov. 29, 1909. In behalf of the proposed demonstration farm, as proposed by Mr. West and so ably endorsed editorially in your paper, the First National bank of Milton hereby subscribes the sum of $100. We are in position to know that the great majority of the farmers of Santa Rosa county are as hard-working and industrious a class as can be found in any farming community in the United States. We know that the farmers of this county have made many costly mistakes in trying to produce certain crops when other crops could be more profitably grown, we know that thousands of dollars have been spent on the wrong grade of fertilizer. With a demonstration farm in our county and a competent agriculturist in charge, all this waste of time, labor and money could be saved. The soils in the different sections could be analyzed and the farmers advised as to the best and most profitable crops to be grown on their farms, and the right grade of fertilizer to be used. A demonstration farm is a step in the right direction. Let's have one.

S. J. HARVEY, Cashier.
First National Bank.

In addition to the above, Mr. Charles H. Simpson, of the Arcadia farm, who made such a splendid showing at the recent Tri-County fair at Pensacola, generously offers to place, free of charge, 20 acres of land, under good fence, with good buildings on the place, at the service and for use of the proposed farm.

Mr. Simpson is an enthusiast on the subject of improved farm methods and his offer is an earnest of the importance he deems the matter to the future welfare of his home county.

With such a splendid start, it is hoped that other progressive citizens will speedily come forward with donations, so that things may be got in shape and practical work begun.

AGED FARMER KILLED. Hazlehurst, Miss., Dec. 6.—J. H. Morgan, aged 50, a farmer from Crystal Springs, was accidentally killed in the county court house here today. Morgan, who was one of the jurors on duty, was walking through the lobby of the building, when a pistol fell from the pocket of Deputy Sheriff Anderson and was discharged, the bullet striking Morgan's body, causing death within a short time.

OH, WHAT REAL JOY!

To Have the Sense of Smell After Being Unable to Smell Any thing for 14 Long Years.

This has been the case of a local lady here in this city, Mrs. Emanuel Rivers, who resides at 1410 E. Gadsden street. She said: "I have been afflicted with catarrh in my head and throat for 14 years. My head was most of the time stopped up. About 11 years ago I lost the sense of smell and I have been unable to realize that wonderful gift from God. These different smells are until they lose them. I have tried very many different so-called cures for catarrh in my head and throat, but it was very little good. I have much difficulty in sleeping as I would have to breathe most of the time through my mouth. My breath was very bad, my mouth was sore, I would have trouble in clearing my throat, and I struggled on, having no given up all hopes of ever being well again. But after being cured by my friends about the Quaker Herb Extract and Oil of Balm, I wonder cures that were made by the Quaker Herb Extract, and with his Quaker Herb Remedies, and how they were the greatest remedies in the world for curing catarrh in any form. I decided to try them, and thank God I did, for to think, I have used only two bottles of Quaker Herb Extract and Oil of Balm, and I am completely restored. I am certainly thankful for I am feeling better in every respect. Gray also claims Quaker Herb Extract and Oil of Balm will cure Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver, Stomach and Blood Troubles; Indigestion, Constipation, and build up weak, run-down man or woman, and expel all worms from man, woman or child. Tape-worms, hook-worms, stomach worms, fit or pin worms, now these are what Gray is proving every day at Hannah Bros. drug store. That the Quaker Remedies will positively cure. Call today. Have a talk with Gray. It costs you nothing. You don't have to buy. If you cannot call, order by mail. The remedies will be sent you by express on receipt of price. Quaker Herb Extract $1.00 per bottle, 2 for $2.50; Oil of Balm, 25c; Quaker Cough Syrup 25c, 5 for $1.00. Gray prepares express on orders of $3.00 or over. Gray proves what he says from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

PO-MO-NA

Is Accomplishing Wonders for Consumptives and Sufferers of Kindred Diseases.

The following is one of scores of testimonials from sufferers of tuberculosis on file in the Company's office. This case is certified to by a prominent Clergyman of Nashville, Tenn., whose name will be furnished upon application.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 16, 1909.

This is to certify that about seven months ago I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs—my left lung being the most affected—causing me excruciating pain when turning my head to the left. My cough became incessant, especially during the early part of the day. Finally hemorrhages set in, and my weakened condition I was unable to perform my ordinary household duties.

I was advised to try PO-MO-NA, for Consumption, a new remedy that was being manufactured in Nashville, and after using one bottle of PO-MO-NA all soreness disappeared, the hemorrhages ceased, and my cough was almost gone. When I had taken half of the second bottle I felt no further symptoms of the ailment that had afflicted me for months.

In all, I used two bottles of PO-MO-NA, and now feel like a new woman. My appetite and strength have been greatly increased, and I am as strong as ever.

I fully believe that PO-MO-NA saved me from an early grave. I am, with sincere gratitude, very respectfully, MRS. JENNIE STARKS.

Sufferers of Tuberculosis or Consumption, in any form, need suffer no longer if PO-MO-NA is taken in time.
